

Services

The service sector of our company-organisation is steadily getting more important regarding our product portfolio; for a long time now, most of our employees have been focusing on this segment.

However, the activities of hentschke + sawatzki commenced with the development and manufacturing of pesticides; the demand for integrated pest monitoring management was born in the 1970s. So, our genes are lying in the development and production of chemical products. Naturally, we continue to hold this know-how to be essential for solving numerous complex problems. In addition, as a producer of batch-based products, it is certainly an advantage to be very close to many of our food-company customers.

Meanwhile, the execution of so-called quality and hygiene inspections is fully integrated into our processes. This is not to be taken for granted, since historically these services were not only not integrated into the process but were explicitly positioned completely independently of it. We changed this fundamentally many years ago.

The control of pigeon populations in buildings or on the premises of our customers is a special field of our division of services and is consequently carried out by a department specialized in this sector. Although "pigeon control" is thematically regarded as an important part of integrated pest control, its conception and implementation are in fact only slightly related to conventional pest control.

Are you perhaps interested in individual in-house training? Then let us talk about it. We will be happy to coordinate an individual concept for & with you.

In the standard training program, we provide, among other things, the necessary expertise in the application of rodent control products (rodenticides). In this way, we ensure that you and your employees meet the legal requirements.

Find out more about our range of services under the following points:

Please click on the corresponding teaser on the German page.